Bisou

BISOU GALLERY
Julien Rademaker (1978) is a curator and designer known for his eclectic taste and his ability to transform the traditional gallery experience. At the heart of his work is a commitment to showcasing artists and their creations in intimate, thoughtfully curated environments. In these spaces, where diverse artistic perspectives and mediums converge, each piece enhances the other, creating a harmonious dialogue that feels both personal and engaging.

Based in Amsterdam's eastern docklands, Bisou Gallery embodies Julien's vision: a warm and approachable space where established and emerging artists meet. The collection spans paintings, prints, ceramic objects, and design pieces, always with an eye for the unique and the visually captivating.

Julien's work is driven by a belief in the transformative power of art, where the spirit of a piece—its ability to evoke emotion, challenge the mundane, and inspire new perspectives—takes center stage. Beyond the gallery, he extends this philosophy to hotels and private interiors, curating spaces that feel alive and deeply personal. Whether designing a hotel collection or helping someone discover their first artwork, his aim is consistent: to bring art into everyday life in ways that inspire joy, spark curiosity, and start conversations.

Bisou Gallery curates exceptional artworks that are featured in private collections around the world, as well as in the interiors of prestigious hotels and offices.

'My House is Your House offers Bisou the chance to expand its reach and present Antwerp with a curated selection of extraordinary artists whose work continues to inspire and surprise me, all within a space that is both historically significant and creatively vibrant.'
