SOLIDFIED reveals first exhibitors!

SOLIDFIED proudly announces the participation of Transnatural, Studio Cuno, Hans Severin Jacobsen and Studio Maximilian Beck during Milan Design Week 2026!
Below you will find an introduction to the first four exhibitors followed by practical details.

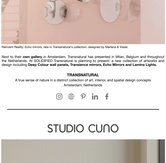

TRANSNATURAL

Rimmed Reality Soho mirrors, new in Transnatural's collection, designed by Marlene & Klaas

Transnatural offers a distinctive collection of art, interior and spatial design concepts. Research, development and production intertwine seamlessly under the creative direction of Marlene & Klaas. The approach leads to unique artworks and (custom) designs that provoke senses and immersive experiences.

Production methods often balance traditional craftsmanship with advanced technologies, alternative energy sources, and eco-friendly materials. Transnatural is always searching for new methods to enforce our living environments so that technology, nature, and humans can grow, improve, and nourish one another.

Studio Cuno is driven by global cultural inspiration. Through his travels, he discovers beauty in the often overlooked details such as textures, subtle architectural transitions and unexpected color combinations. These moments of inspiration are then translated into new classics or reinterpretations of established ones with modern design, always leaving his an interesting contrast.

Based in the Netherlands, Studio Cuno works on projects worldwide, designing objects for brands and complete collections where no two pieces are identical. Studio Cuno collaborates with international brands and manufacturers, creating work that blends craftsmanship, innovation, and global influences.

It is the contrast between raw craftsmanship and modern design that makes their work stand out. At SOLIDFIED Studio Cuno is planning to present a new collection.

This collection explores the dialogue of contrast. Rough-cast recycled aluminum is paired with soft, flowing forms, creating a striking visual and tactile tension. Each high-gloss surface are embraced by tactile, comfortable upholstery. These contrasts create a clear expression of precise craftsmanship and intentional design, where every detail serves both form and function.

This collection explores lighting design and architectural ceiling pieces is handcrafted, featuring intricate bent copper wire rings complemented through metallic, industrial design. It is a conversation between the past and the future. Honest materials meet time-honored craftsmanship, all shaped into refined, minimalist forms.

- New series of casted recycled aluminium light objects
- New lounge chair in association with FEST Amsterdam
- New bench made of sheet metal

HANS SEVERIN JACOBSEN

Stone Bench and Stool by Hans Severin Jacobsen © Ditte Gantriis

Hans Severin Jacobsen is a Danish artist and designer working between art, design, and craftsmanship. With a background in architecture and cabinetmaking, his practice is grounded in materials, process, and the relationship between hand and machine. His work explores how we engage with crafted wooden and industrial elements.

The work is driven by an artistic investigation of material relationships, balance, and weight. By placing natural stone in constructed contexts, Jacobsen explores how materials carry history, expectation, and tension. Each piece is shaped by decisions about what to keep, what to remove, and what to leave unresolved.

His work has been on display in Sydney (Rustic Garnet), Morocco (Secret), Collectible Brussels and throughout Denmark including Ark Kubbal (Copenhagen), Pluto Atelier (Copenhagen) and VIEU Gallery (Aalborg). At SOLIDFIED there will be new stone furniture objects on display.

STUDIO MAXIMILIAN BECK

Black and clear version of the VOTA side table by Maximilian Beck

Captivated by the infinite variety of casting methods, where every detail in mould-making leaves unique traces, Maximilian Beck transforms these fleeting moments into lasting forms of sculptural and practical interiorism. His transformative rhythms of nature alongside traditional artisanal techniques intertwine, creating pieces that are both timeless and contemporary. Each piece is a testament to the refined mold-making and the intense heat of the kiln. Beck's approach is guided by curiosity and exploration, with continuous material studies forming the foundation of his practice.

Beck's objects have been on display at eg. Museum of Decorative Arts Berlin, Collectible Brussels, Dutch Design Week Eindhoven, Milan Design Week, Maastricht Design Week, Design Miami/ Basel and Design Days Dubai. At SOLIDFIED there will be new stone furniture objects on display.

SOLIDFIED 2026 / ORIGIN

David Haak (SOLIDFIED) and Sunne Kaal (FINDING FORMS) join forces at Via Carlo Farini 39 in Milan's Design District to present a collective exhibition exploring coherence through material, form, and connection.

The exhibition examines how distinct objects, materials, and ideas can coexist within a single universe - how individuality and contrast can lead to a new sense of unity. Rather than striving for harmony, the duo investigates the tension between difference and belonging, between standing alone and being part of relationships.

Bringing together designers, studios, and brands, the exhibition unfolds as a curated universe of material explorations, functional design, and artistic expression. Each piece stands on its own, yet contributes to a broader conversation about how we live, gather, and create together.

SOLIDFIED has received confirmations from talented creatives based in Belgium, Denmark, Ecuador, France, Germany, Netherlands and beyond. Leading up to the opening, all exhibitors will be introduced via these and via our press releases and our socials channels.
